

InvestmentStrategy

Scalping strategy that is performed by a Scalping Robot with a human monitoring.

Trading occurs during less volatile periods to ensure that the risk of drawdown does not affect results as can be experienced when trading during news releases and volatile periods.

Scalping strategy can not only generate good returns but also act as risk management and to protect performance.

Risk Management

Trading in very short time frames to grab a few gains at a time in very quick trades. This is my daily trading style, since a good scalper can be very profitable.

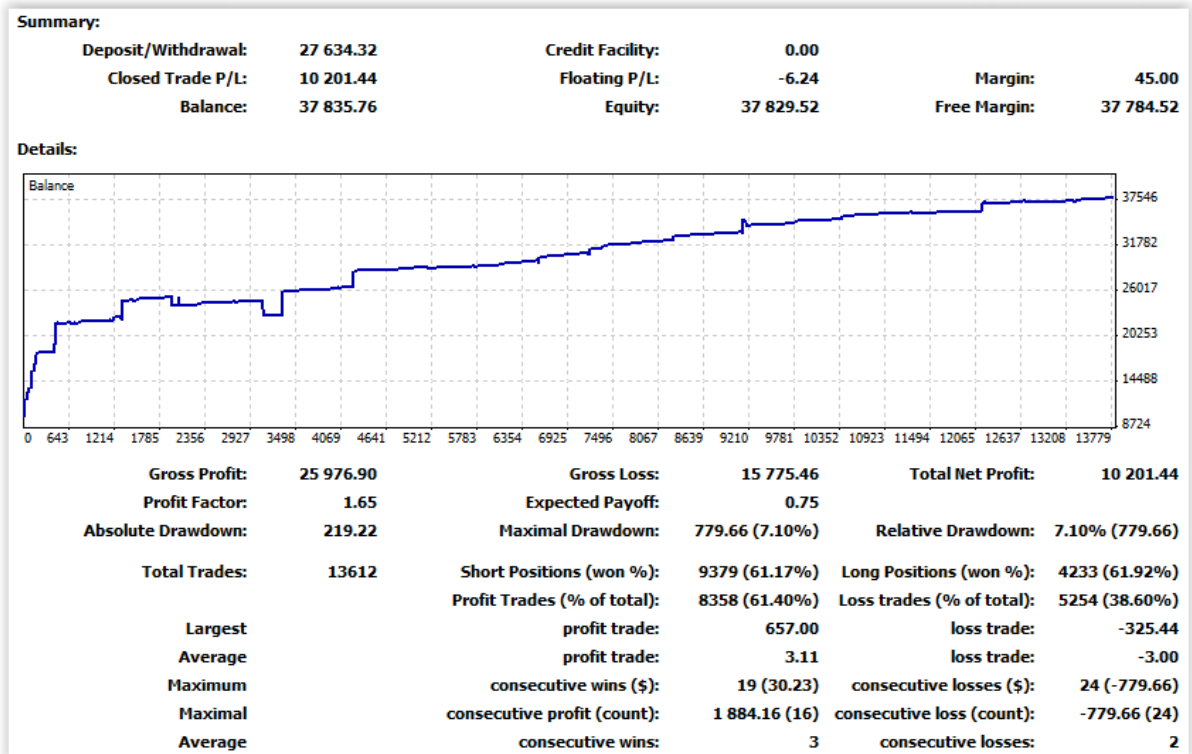

I do not trade the news, because of high volatility and higher risk
